Part A- Balancing Equations and Types of Reactions

Among the types of reactions and balancing equations this one is very similar to the previous one. The only change is that it has double replacement instead of single replacement. So, two changes are made. An example is given to make it clear: AB and CD produce AC and BD. so, these are basically the main four types of reactions and balancing equations.

Balancing Chemical Reactions Chemical reactions are like recipes in that the quantity and types of ingredients, or reactants, can be related to the quantity and type of cooked food, or product(s) formed. Balancing chemical reactions then allows one to determine stoichiometry calculations by understanding the ratio between reactants and/or products.
