Dinosaur fossils have been found on every continent on Earth; humans have inhabited, and continue to inhabit, every continent on Earth. Thus, it would seem that if dinosaurs and humans really did live as contemporaries at one time, as creationists contend, human fossils would have been found alongside, near, or in the same strata as dinosaur fossils.

To solve a route-finding puzzle, one must navigate a traveler piece (sometimes one's whole body - or maybe just a fingertip...) through a pre-established network of routes, from some starting point to some goal point, perhaps obeying some rules or constraints along the way. Usually the challenge is to find any route, but sometimes one must find the shortest route among many.

In geology, a fault is a planar fracture or discontinuity in a volume of rock, across which there has been significant displacement as a result of rock-mass movement. Large faults within the Earth's crust result from the action of plate tectonic forces, with the largest forming the boundaries between the plates, such as subduction zones or transform faults.
